

Group Study Room Reservation System at UNM University Libraries

There are Group Study Rooms in all four branch libraries. Any University student, faculty, or staff member with a current UNM ID may use group study rooms. Rooms are available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Rooms should be used for group study and discussion, not as office space or for regular class meetings.

Reserving a room in advance is encouraged and can be done up to a week ahead. Room reservation will be held for fifteen minutes after the hour of the reservation. During extended hours at the University Libraries, exceptions may be made to this policy based on availability of resources.

Groups may reserve a study room for up to two hours at a time. Due to high demand, reservations beyond two hours will be canceled to allow full access to study rooms for other UNM students. Rooms may be renewed depending on the availability of resources.

Groups who have not made a reservation may be asked to relocate. Due to increased demand for group study rooms, groups with room reservations are given priority. If you are studying alone, you may be asked to relocate.

Spaces for groups larger than ten people may be available on a case-by-case basis. Please contact a library service desk for more information and room availability. In the Fine Arts & Design, Parish, and Zimmerman Library, access to group study rooms requires a key you check out from the Service Desk. Failure to check out the key may result in a canceled reservation and reassignment of the room. The reservation will be deleted and the room will be available for reassignment.

Chalkboard/whiteboard supplies are available at the service desks in each library branch.
